WORK RUSHING AT L. H. SHATTUCK SHIP YARD

No Discharge of Workmen—All Put to Work—More Men Will Be Added

The wild story published that there had been hundreds of men discharged from the L. H. Shattuck ship yard, is without an atom of truth. There were some men left on Saturday night, but it was due to lack of train service and not dissatisfaction with the work or lack of work.

Orders issued soon after the armistice was signed, stopping overtime on ships and doing away with night work, caused the Shattuck plant to suspend the night shift on Saturday. All of the men employed were given jobs with the day shift, but seventy-five of the men, who live in Kennebunk, North Berwick, Bowley, Ipswich, etc., were unable to remain for the fact that they could not secure train service, except for the night shift. They were unwilling to be away from their families and being unable to secure rooms in either this city or Dover, were forced to give up the work until such time as the company can secure train service or rents for them.

There were in addition fifteen men more left, about the usual change, as every day pay. General Manager Stevens said Sunday evening that there was no reduction in the working force, and he was sorry that the 75 men could not accept day work, as they were needed.

American Army in Lorraine, Sunday, Nov. 17.—Early tomorrow morning the American advance toward the Rhine will be resumed and another big step on the way toward the heart of Germany will be taken. Today's advance went without a hitch. The roads over which the Americans marched were frozen during the greater part of the day. This made the walking bad but not nearly so difficult as it was in the recent past when mud and wire had to be negotiated. The troops have moved out of the shell torn area where the roads have been hastily and tem-

(By Associated Press)

Paris, Nov. 18.—The last German troops left Brussels yesterday according to a dispatch from the Havre correspondent on the Belgian front. Extraordinary scenes were witnessed around the north station from which most of them departed. Wishing to have money to take home with them, they sold everything they owned or had stolen. Some laid out possessions on the sidewalk and sold their wares in a loud voice. Among the articles offered for sale were blankets, clothing and shoes, as well as wool and copper goods taken from the inhabitants of the city.

MOLDERS TO RETURN TO WORK TODAY

Difference Over Prisoners' Work On Yard Settled at Conference

The strike of the molders at the navy yard has been adjusted and the men will return to their work this morning. The molders went out on a strike as a protest against the employment of prisoners about the shops of the yard and they sent telegrams to Secretary Daniels citing their grounds for the protest.

On Saturday afternoon a conference between a committee of the Molders and Industrial Manager Adams was held at the navy yard and as a result of the talk, it was agreed that the prisoners would not be allowed in the shops and the men agreed to return to their work.

The yard authorities deny that the prisoners were to work in the shops, but that this party of prisoners were laying the steel pipe main, for which no labor was available and, in laying a main to heat the foundry, had to go inside of the shop to finish the work.

SUSPECT FOUL PLAY IN DEATH OF GIRL

Miss Berry's Body Found at Kennebunk Beach.

Kennebunk Beach, Nov. 18.—Violence is suspected in the death of pretty Gladys Viola Berry, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Berry of this town, whose body was found in the Measum River, near Parsons Beach, Sunday. An autopsy will be held today by Medical Examiner Charles F. Trinney of Biddeford. The girl's body was found by Paul Wentwood and J. M. Gooch, who were walking along the bank of the river early in the day.

Gladys disappeared on Saturday after having attended a party. She was last seen by Ruth Mitchell, a companion, from whom she separated at the Four Corners. The Mitchell girl told the police that Gladys was in low spirits and had threatened to commit suicide. She disappeared in the direction of a bridge about a quarter of a mile from the point at which her body was found.

When she did not arrive home from the party on that night, her parents notified the police and a search of the surrounding country was begun. It wasn't until Sunday, however, that the trace of her was discovered. The rumors of violence in connection with her disappearance enlisted the aid of Atty. Gen. Charles M. Sturgis, who detailed investigators to all the local authorities. They learned that just before Gladys left for home with the Mitchell girl she had had a conversation with a young man named Harry West. He has been unable to help in solving the mystery surrounding her disappearance.

A cursory examination of the body Sunday demonstrated no marks of violence, but because of the widespread discussion concerning possibilities of foul play, the medical examiner has decided to hold the autopsy.

TROOPS CALLED TO QUELL RIOT

Lynching Party Broken up and Two Are Killed and Others Wounded

(By Associated Press)

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 17.—At least two persons were killed and a score of others wounded, some seriously, in a riot here tonight, resulting from the effort of several thousand people to storm the city jail and lynch a negro, who last night shot John Childs and Shirley Flint, and then attacked Mrs. Flint. Late tonight firing was still going on in some parts of the town.

Efforts of the guards and police were unavailing and Gov. Beckett was asked to intervene and he ordered the Home Guard from Greensboro and made arrangements for a company of regular soldiers from Camp Polk.

The crowd began forming late in the night and after storming the jail they reported that they had shot the wrong man and the mob reformed and returned to the attack. The mayor addressed the crowd until some relief could arrive. When the fire department began playing the hose on the mob the shooting began.

Greensboro, N. C., Nov. 17.—The Greensboro Home Guard were called out tonight and a few minutes after were on their way in a special train for Winston-Salem.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 17.—Gov. Beckett arranged this evening for Camp Polk to send 250 men from a tank battalion here to Winston-Salem to preserve order.

While it saw its last fighting Feb. 1, 1917.

The New England boys have been fighting over water and sand in the thick of the Verdun sector, while the Germans, no longer able to withstand the terrific onslaughts of the troops of the Allies, hoisted the white flag and begged for a truce.

Such is brief as the record of the 36th Division. It is a thrilling story as related today by its first commander, the pastor of his beloved home in Darien, Conn. the city.

He and his wife had just returned from a visit to the grave of their only child, a beautiful young woman, who gave her life nursing the soldiers sick with influenza at Camp Meade. He had a military funeral, an honor seldom paid a woman by the Army.

Present when Gen. Edwards told the story, today, were his old Maj. Hyatt and Ex-Lieut. William J. Dohrman, who was invited home some time ago.

Dohrman, when leaving France, promised Gen. Edwards that he would be on the dock to meet him when he returned home. He missed him by a few hours in New York yesterday. Finding that the General had left for Washington, Dohrman took the midnight train for this city, and he is the guest of his former commander.

"There he is," said Dohrman, with a wave of the hand as the General came into the room, "the finest man in the American Army, bar none, and the only friend the National Guard had over there."

"No man ever commanded a finer body of troops than the 26th division," declared the General. "The premier American regiment, our French friends called it, and I had the satisfaction of having a German officer ask me how many 26th Divisions there were in the American Expeditionary Forces. I told him only one, and he replied that there must be more, because he had met the division so many times on the most stubbornly contested ground."

The 26th was among the first over, went on Gen. Edwards, "and we had to do a great many things that later arrivals were not called upon to do. It was necessary, and they did it as cheerfully as they did everything they were ordered to do."

"At my request the entire division was moved up to the Chemin des Dames sector. We stayed there 46 days. We then entrained under heavy fire at Soissons and took position at Bar-sur-Aube. From there we went to Rezoncourt for a training period."

"The day we arrived there was trouble in the Toul sector. We did our bit by taking over 18 kilometers of front by far the biggest sector given any American force up to that time."

"We remained there three months, when we were ordered to Panton, a suburb of Paris, and several neighboring villages. Soon after that we were ordered to relieve the 2d Division. We took over that sector July 9."

"On the 18th of July the infantry went over the top. The artillery went over on the 25th. On Aug. 4 we were in the Meuse sector and we were ordered to Châtillon. After 10 days of hard campaigning we were ordered to the San Michel salient, taking over two sectors."

"Right at this spot in 1915 30,000 brave Frenchmen laid down their lives to stem the German tide, which was rushing onward, engulfing 15 French divisions in the attack. Now mark you. We went over the top on the 12th of September. After this we were ordered to take over what we call the New England sector, but which the French called the Troyon."

"Let me tell you a little story which illustrates the spirit of those boys," broke in Maj. Hyatt. "I think the General will recall this. A private was dying in the hospital, and he asked to see Gen. Edwards. You know there wasn't a man in the division who wanted to see Gen. Edwards and had any kind of an excuse for asking this privilege but what had his request granted."

"I'm sorry to say that Gen. Edwards did not arrive at the hospital until after the poor fellow passed away, and he regretted it very much. The chaplain told him that when he told the soldier that he was going to die, the fellow perked up and said: 'Chaplain, that's feel so bad about it. What hell do you think I came to France for, anyway?'

At another time in the interview Maj. Hyatt interrupted to show Gen. Edwards and myself a letter just received from E. V. Rickenberger of the 14th Aero Squadron, saying that every body in France knew that the Yankee division was the finest division over there.

Many of our New Hampshire men were in this division and the General was warm in his praise of their valor.

MORALE IN U. S. CAMPS BREAKING

With Prospect of Peace Now Anxious to Be Sent Home.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Cessation of hostilities in Europe and disappearance of the prospect of meeting the enemy on the battlefield has brought an immediate loss of morale among American troops at home that is regarded at the war department as somewhat alarming. It is understood that steps to deal with the situation already are being prepared.

Reported from all divisions on Nov. 11, the date of the armistice without exception contained glowing references to the high spirit of the men and to their evident desire for early embarkation. Upon the news that the armistice had been signed the mental attitude of the individual soldier is said to have undergone a marked change. Instead of bombarding his immediate superiors with queries as to the probable date of entraining for the seaboard, he became anxious as to the date of his release from service.

More serious are reports by some commanding officers that their men are exhibiting a tendency to view themselves as already released from the strict routine of the camps. Hundreds of cases are listed of men who, having been granted the usual four-weekend leave, failed to return to camp on time. These men automatically are charged with being absent without leave, an offense but slightly less heinous than desertion under military law. Regulations prescribe capital punishment in flagrant cases but the custom has been to inflict, at most, only heavy prison terms.

The whole question of how the morale of recently inducted soldiers can be kept up is considered one requiring serious attention. It is understood that the first step will be to ask relatives of soldiers who have absented themselves to assist the authorities in having them returned "promptly to spare the families the disgrace of having an armed guard sent and with the view of mitigating punishment of the offender."

DESTROYER SHAW SUNK BY LINER

New York, Nov. 16.—In the collision between the United States destroyer Shaw and the British liner Aquitania announced by the navy department two days later, the naval vessel was cut in two 35 feet aft of the bow, and the forward section sank immediately; the other section catching fire, it was learned here today with the arrival of the Melita, carrying 26 survivors of the Shaw.

The survivors on the Melita, a Canadian Pacific steamship, said the Shaw was one of a number of destroyers convoying a big fleet carrying American troops to an English port.

The liner was steaming on a zig-zag course. At 6:45 a. m. the steering gear of the Shaw jammed, while she was running at a 35 knot speed and the destroyer failed to answer her helm. Her course was directly across the bow of the oncoming Aquitania, a full in the fleet. The Aquitania struck the Shaw like a monster knife, the survivors said, passing through her just forward of the bridge and not seeming to lose her headway.

The Aquitania, continued on her course. Apparently she was not damaged by the collision. Because of the possible presence of U-boats, the fleet steamed ahead with the exception of the destroyers which went to the Shaw's rescue.

BRITISH STEAMER SENDS OUT S.O.S.

St. John's, N. S., Nov. 17.—A radio message received here from the British steamer Caspasia, of the Federal line, stated that it was in a sinking condition off Cape Race. No further particulars were given. It is thought here that the steamer was the victim of the hurricane that has been raging along this coast.

A RELIABLE GERMAN STORY?

(By Associated Press)

Copenhagen, Nov. 17.—According to Berlin dispatch to a paper here, President Wilson has informed the German government that the maintenance of order was one of the requirements of the armistice and that the Russian Bolsheviks were permitted to enter the country, that the armistice would be void.

Washington, Nov. 17.—It was stated authoritatively that Germany has not been informed that law and order in Germany is part of the armistice terms or that the Bolsheviks of Russia have anything to do with the treaty.

Government Ownership as an Issue.

S. Davies Warfield of Baltimore, president of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, recently sent a communication to the association's central committee for New England in which he had something to say on the subject of government ownership of the railroads, of which he apparently is not in favor.

Mr. Warfield says the question of government ownership and operation of the railroads and other public franchises will shortly become a national political issue demanding the attention of the leading political parties. "Within the 21-month period that remains for temporary government control of the nation's railroads, Mr. Warfield avers, "the people of the United States will determine the future of the transportation system."

In Mr. Warfield's opinion one of two things will be done: Either the railroads will be turned over to the government permanently on the best terms obtainable or the people will decide that it will be better for the roads to remain in private hands under proper regulation, thus preserving to them the benefits of individual initiative.

It is clear that Mr. Warfield is not in sympathy with the idea of government ownership and operation of railroads or other public utilities. He says if there is created a government autocracy in the conduct of the affairs of these great trade arteries of the nation, it will not stop there; that the system of paternalism thus established would be extended to other industrial activities and that "the gradual encroachment of such a system upon property rights and upon personal liberty, the restraint entailed thereby and the political control thus made possible, must finally result in a one-party country, the forerunner of a form of governmental autocracy that could finally be overthrown only by revolution."

In this Mr. Warfield may be putting it rather strong, but it cannot be denied that the spirit of paternalism has been growing rapidly in this country in recent years. The war is not responsible for it, but it has given it a decided boost, and it is none too early for the people to be giving it their attention.

"Times change and men change with them," and systems also change with the passage of time. But the American government was not designed to take charge of the people's business and there is no danger of the country moving too slowly in the direction of government ownership, while big risks would surely be taken by moving too rapidly in that direction. In their vexation over the shortcomings of the railroads and other great public utilities many have acquired the habit of shouting for government ownership without realizing the full significance of the proposed change. While due allowance must be made for war conditions, it is not too much to say that the average individual is unable to see any great improvement in the management and operation of the railroads since they passed into the hands of the government. Something in the way of control there must be, but there must be careful study of the present government operation. The railroads have in years past had altogether too much to do with slate affairs. This must cease, whether under government ownership or private control.

It is unwelcome news that comes from Kittery relative to the abandonment by the government of the housing project there. More houses are needed by the navy yard men, and building operations should be continued until the supply equals the demand. Let's get that contract carried out.

Postmaster General Burleson intimates that there may be a reduction in telegraph and telephone rates before long. Good! Not much talk of this kind has been heard since the government began the process of "laking over."

Burglars as well as shoplifters still persist in giving their attention to this city. But some of them have already been brought to the "bull ring," and there is a day of reckoning in store for the others.

The fact that the florists of the country are now to have all the coal they need in their business is welcome news, notwithstanding the fact that no flowers are wanted for the Kaiser, dead or alive.

Political activity is steadily increasing, and this is proper. There is a municipal election not far ahead and it is time to be getting ready for it. This applies to the voters as well as to the candidates.

Now that the war is over, it has been decided in Boston that it will not be necessary to close the stores during the noon hour. It was a questionable proposition at the best.

DEMAND THAT THE GUILTY BE PUNISHED

To the Editor Herald,

Dear Sir:—There must be personal punishment for the super-criminals of this war. They must be brought before an International Tribunal, tried for definite violations of International Law (like the ravishing of Belgium, the sinking of the Lusitania, the bombing of Red Cross hospitals, the starving and brutalizing of helpless civilians on land and sea) and sentenced to personally pay the clearly provided penalties for these crimes, so that posterity may never forget their wickedness. Napoleon Bonaparte was personally punished for his crime. Charles Stuart was personally punished. Nicolas Romanoff has been personally punished. And now William Hohenzollern must be personally punished.

No money indemnities, no territorial adjustments, no overthrow of Prussian autocracy can relieve their arch-criminal and his guilty advisors from their personal responsibility for this war and its hideous consequences. They must suffer in their own bodies for their own sins. The dead would also from their graves on the battlefield if these monsters of cruelty and rapacity escape personal punishment.

I believe that an overwhelming majority of American citizens will cry out in horror against any peace that does not provide adequate personal punishment for those who deliberately by their own acts brought upon the world the greatest misery mankind has ever known. Very truly yours,

Cleveland Moffett.

Member, Board of Trustees, American Defense Society.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR DR. TOWLE

Large Gathering to Pay Him Honor at Baptist Church---A Fitting Service

A memorial service for Dr. Fred S. Towle, captain United States Medical Reserve Corps, who died in the service at the government base hospital at Colono, N. J., on Oct. 10, 1918, was held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Middle Street Baptist church and although the weather was very disagreeable there was a large number of people present. It was a representative gathering of people of this city and surrounding towns, for several were present from out of the city. It included Mayor S. T. Ladu, the members of the Portsmouth Medical Society, members of the school board and prominent business and professional men.

The memorial service was held at the request of his many friends, as the time of his funeral the epidemic of influenza was in full sway and there was a ban upon public funerals. It was an exceptionally fine service and the three speakers were very eloquent in their eulogy of Dr. Towle, the man, the physician and the citizen.

Rev. William P. Stanley, pastor of the Middle Street church, of which Dr. Towle was a member, was the first speaker and he said he could not think of any better description of him than that of "a tall man helping somebody." He spoke of some of the helpful things that had come under his personal observation and of his wonderful personality and his ever-readiness to extend the helping hand to everybody.

Dr. A. C. Heffenger spoke on Dr. Towle as the physician and he made a very fine summing up of the career of the Doctor. He briefly sketched his education in medicine and of some of the things he has done in a professional way, and to the fact that he was the first man in this city to use the diphtheria antitoxin. In 1894, when there was an epidemic raging here, he spoke of his wonderful interest in all of his patients and said that he never knew a physician who gave so much of himself to his patients as the late physician. He spoke of his never taking a chance with his patients, if he was not sure of his treatment he would always call a consultation and if that was not sufficient the best of expert advice. He spoke of his weekly trip to Boston to consult with specialists and visit the hospitals so that he might be better informed, an of his generous nature. It was never a question of money, he gave his patients the best that could be secured and the money was secondary.

He said that Dr. Towle was on doubtedly one of the pioneer prison reform men in the country, and he briefly related the reforms he had brought about in the New Hampshire state prison, when he was a member of the governor's council, and against the most militant opposition. He said in closing that the physician sometimes gives his life to the cause of medicine, and our good friend, Dr. Towle, did this.

Rev. L. H. Thayer, D. D., spoke in a most eloquent manner of Dr. Towle, the citizen. He declared that Dr. Towle was awake to the opportunities and responsibilities of citizenship and he briefly defined citizenship and stated that the Doctor was of the best type, a man who was always willing to help in all that was for the betterment of his fellow man. He could always be relied upon to assist in all civic and welfare work being especially interested in the schools, the children and the teachers, and he spoke of his long and faithful service on the school board.

He recalled while serving as an adjointive officer as surgeon general, he made the trip to Chattanooga in 1898 and brought back the boys from this city who were there sick with typhoid fever and of long hours of care and attention until he had them safe in the local hospital. He spoke of his keen interest and work in many of the state institutions and in all state measures of an uplifting character. He spoke of his great talent for politics, but a talent he would not use for his own advancement in public life, having refused to run for office except that of the governor's council.

In closing he said Dr. Towle carried his courage with him and was an effective opponent or advocate of men and measures in civic affairs.

The Masonic quartet, Messrs. Horace, P. Montgomery, C. W. Gray, John W. Mitchell and Ernest L. Cook, rendered three selections with Miss Blumick at the organ.

The following was the order of the service:

GAVE AN INTERESTING TALK

Mrs. Helen R. Thayer on "American College Women in France."

Mrs. Helen R. Thayer, wife of the pastor, Rev. Lucia H. Thayer, gave the address at the North Church on Sunday evening, her subject being "American College Women at the Front in France."

Mrs. Thayer had the honor to be chairman of the committee that organized and maintained the Smith College Unit, and details of some of their work of helpfulness and in restoration were listened to with marked interest by her audience.

The Smith unit was sent overseas early in 1917, as an independent organization and was assigned to a district of 36 square miles, which embraced 17 villages and 20,000 inhabitants. The unit established a community farm from which all the farms of that region were reached. It opened schools and churches and established classes and recreational work for the children. It opened stores and maintained a motor truck, which made three trips a week to the villages of the district, selling necessities. By the first of March of that year, with the help of the British soldiers it had accomplished the seeding of all the farms, 350 in number.

On March 21, when the German drive began in this region, the unit under orders of the Red Cross evacuated all its villages, carrying out the old, the sick and little children to safety. It remained until it was within the reach of the cavalry charge of the Germans and worked between the two armies under shellfire. It opened emergency canteens and served thousands of refugees and wounded soldiers. The unit fed the French wounded at Beauvais, and worked in army hospitals where at one time there were more than 400 severely wounded men and only three nurses to care for them. The unit visited England, passing much time in the French hospitals, acting as interpreters and bringing the men comforts they so liked. The unit carried on an American club where large numbers of men came daily. On July 4 this club entertained 550 people. From here the unit was called by Gen. Pershing to Chateau Thierry soon after the Germans had left. Here they carried on canteen work for the American wounded. It took charge of thousands of wounded on boats going down the Marne to Paris.

It was again called on to Neuf Chateau and from there moved back to the American battle lines, opening every day for the wounded.

To give one an idea what this meant is shown by the fact that from one canteen 35,000 cups of chocolate were served in 21 hours by four women, who often hauled their own water and kept their fires as well as cooking and serving.

The last new effort by the unit before America established roadside canteens was the serving of refreshments and words of cheer to the men as they went into battle. The unit is now to do reconstruction work under the Red Cross.

WAR CONTRACTS GREAT PROBLEM

Men, Money and Mills Must Be Swung Into Reconstruction Work Without Chaos

Washington, Nov. 17.—President Wilson it is believed in official circles here, will within the next week or 10 days take steps to clear the atmosphere concerning the administration's plan for the great era of reconstruction facing the nation, by making public announcement of the policy which he feels should be put into effect quickly in order to prevent serious economic disturbances during the troublous period.

At the present time there is unquestionably some confusion of thought. The breakdown of the German war machine, practically overnight, when many were predicting the war would extend well into 1919, brought the country face to face with numerous problems which it was believed would not be confronted for months to come. Definite action by the President, it is now felt, will go far toward averting anything resembling chaos.

Nearly all of the officials seem to agree that there is no good reason for a serious economic disturbance in this country of a comprehensive program is adopted without delay looking into the future and providing for a gradual resumption of industrial and commercial activities of normal times.

To accomplish this certain officials who have been in charge of building up the huge war program feel that at least part of the functions of some of the war agencies must be continued or placed in the hands of a new organization having power to enforce its edicts.

Just what form of organization the President will seek to establish is not known even to officials who were closest to him in the making of the war machine. It is said, but it is known he has been making a study of the situation from many angles and has lately sought information from the heads of some of the war boards.

It is highly possible that the President will ask Congress for enabling legislation which will permit him to carry out the policy which he believed he soon will enunciate, and the general feeling seems to be that the White House will take no step to create a reconstruction commission, under the powers of the Overman act or through other authority invested in him, without such a request. But this point, as well as the intention to appoint a commission, are still in doubt.

Major Leonard Wood Sounds the Call to "Carry On"

This, Also, is the Motto of the United War Work Drive.

This is a statement that Major-General Wood addressed to the men of the Tenth Division:

"Even if an armistice is signed it does not mean the end of the war. It simply means that the terms of peace will be discussed. They may or may not be agreed upon. The work and training of the division will go on with the same energy and spirit as heretofore. There is nothing in the present situation which justifies a change of procedure on our part, and as soldiers it is our duty to carry on, without reference to an armistice; until we receive instructions to the contrary."

As long as the men remain in uniform, we, who are not in uniform, have a debt to pay them. The United War Work Drive gives us an opportunity to settle this debt.

GIVE—GIVE TILL IT HURTS.

A BRILLIANT SERVICE AT CHRIST CHURCH

A celebration of the Holy Eucharist followed by a solemn Te Deum in thanksgiving for victory, was held at Christ Church, Sunday morning. The rector, Rev. C. leV. Brine, was the celebrant, and preached the sermon. Besides a very large attendance of townspeople, 400 soldiers with their officers from Fort Constitution, were present.

The Marine Band arrived at 10:10 a. m. from the navy yard and marched to Middle street and at Richards avenue was met by the overseas unit at the fort. The procession marched up Middle street to Madison street to Christ church, where the beautiful and solemn service was held as a Thanksgiving for Victory. The band furnished music for the processionals.

The line formed outside the church, and headed by the cross bearer, incense bearer, and acolytes, escorting the rector, was followed by the choir, the standard bearers, and the soldiers with their band. All the altars were ablaze with many candles, and made a beautiful background for the solemn service. The rector in his sermon called the attention of the congregation to the fact that peace had not yet been made, and that while there was ample cause for rejoicing and thanksgiving for the great victory that had been won, yet that prayer should constantly be made for a righteous and lasting peace. He spoke of the many problems to be confronted after the war and urged his hearers to face them as militant Christians, relying at all times upon the help and intercession of Holy Church. Following the celebration of the Eucharist, the solemn Te Deum was sung, after which with the allied flags before the altar, the military band played the national airs of the allies. The procession was then reformed and leaving the altar marched down the main aisle and out of the church. The service was very impressive and was particularly appropriate.
